About Our Kids Network

Raising children is both a rewarding and challenging experience. Our Kids Network is a partnership of organizations serving children and youth in Halton Region and is dedicated to giving family members the resources, services and encouragement to raise responsible, caring kids.

By working together, OKN partner agencies provide a strong, dependable system of services and supports. We offer research-based information, ideas and practical tools to improve knowledge and skills, and build a positive strength-based approach to positive parenting. Community Hubs, parenting presentations and youth engagement projects are some of the ways OKN is taking action in the community. OKN has also identified some key areas to support positive parenting and child development: the *Halton 7, Developmental Assets® and children's rights. Learn more at www.ourkidsnetwork.ca.

Halton Parenting Advisory Committee (HPAC)

HPAC is an Our Kids Network committee of service providers who deliver programs and services that enhance parenting knowledge and skills. The committee produces the Halton Parenting Directory, a source of programs and services that support positive parenting in the Halton community.

Our Kids Network Community Hubs

Our Kids Network Community Hubs are located in schools and are within walking distance for most families who are involved. Each of the Hubs has a distinct character that reflects the needs of the community, families and service partners within it.

*Seven fundamental conditions of well-being in Halton used to measure the progress of Our Kids Network.

Developmental Assets are described as the positive experiences and personal qualities that children and youth need to grow up healthy, caring, and responsible. Learn more at www.search-institute.org.

Developmental Assets: Building Blocks for Raising Caring, Responsible Kids

Our Kids Network is dedicated to giving family members the resources, services and encouragement to raise responsible, caring kids. Educating families about Developmental Assets is one way we're taking action. These are the skills, qualities, opportunities, and relationships that children and young people need to help them grow into caring, responsible adults. Families empower children and teens when they help them build assets.

The Search Institute® has developed a list of 40 Developmental Assets that children and youth need to succeed. The more assets a person has, the more likely they are to do better in school, make friends, and make healthier decisions. They are also less likely to engage in risk-taking behaviour, such as experimenting with drugs or alcohol, or early sexual activity. For more information about Developmental Assets and to see lists of 40 assets visit www.search-institute.org.

Parents play a crucial role in shaping the lives of their children. They are more influential in their children's lives than anyone else, shaping their thoughts, feelings, and behaviors. When we intentionally build Developmental Assets, children develop a sense of belonging, feel secure, enjoy learning and feel loved and nurtured grow up to be caring, responsible, happy adults. The following are seven ways that you can make a difference in a child's life.

Connectedness

A basic need is a sense of belonging – to family, friends, school, community and neighbourhood. The more positive relationships developed the better we are able to be supported, support others, and make a positive difference in the world.

Give your kids a hug today even if they're really big kids.

Developmental Assets 8- to 12-year-olds, Family Support Category (Family life provides high levels of love and support.).
– How to take action.

Communication

Communication is both listening and talking. It is not just what is said, but how it is said or received, in both words and actions.

Teach your children words they can use to describe their feelings. For example a child may feel pleased, excited, content or thrilled instead of just happy.

Developmental Assets 3- to 5-year-olds, Positive Family Communication Category (Parents and/or primary caregivers express themselves positively and respectfully, engaging young children in conversations that invite their input.).
– How to take action.

Security and Trust

A child’s growth and development is founded on security and trust—in relationships, in their environments, and in meeting basic needs such as food, shelter and supervision.

Remove yourself from a situation immediately if you ever feel troubled enough to use physical or emotional violence against your teenager.

Developmental Assets 12- to 18-year-olds, Safety Category (Young person feels safe at home, school, and in the neighborhood.) – How to take action.

Life Learning

Parents/caregivers are a child’s first and most influential teacher. Children reach their full potential when positive values, appropriate skills (social emotional skills, resiliency, life skills, and problem solving) and a life-long love of learning are fostered.

Live honestly even when it’s no big deal. Return the extra if given too much change, play fair, own up to fibs or made-up excuses.

Developmental Assets 8- to 12 -year-olds, Honesty Category (Parent(s) tell the child it is important to tell the truth.) – How to take action.

Time Together

Parenting is about building life-long positive relationships with children. Quality time and positive attention are important investments parents can make to optimize children’s success.

Spend time each week with each of your teenagers.

Developmental Assets 12-to 18 -year-olds, Family Support Category (Family life provides high levels of love and support.) – How to take action.

Nurturing

Everyone has physical and emotional needs that start before birth and continue throughout life. Families thrive when these needs are met.

Offer positive comments and praise when children behave in desirable ways.

Developmental Assets 3 -to 5 -year-olds, Positive Expectations Category (Parent(s), caregivers, and teachers encourage and support the child in behaving appropriately, undertaking challenging tasks, and performing activities to the best of her or his abilities.) – How to take action.

Parenting Support and Self-Care

Parents/caregivers are a child’s most important asset. Parents/caregivers need to take care of themselves and each other in order to take good care of children.
